IEEP – Institute for European Environmental Policy launched Think2030 in 2018, a non-partisan platform and conference series focused on sustainability issues in EU policy. Think2030 convenes national dialogues in association with the Presidency of the Council of the EU twice a year. The last conference occurred in Brussels in March 2024, while previous events took place in Stockholm in April 2023 and in Madrid in November 2023.

These events support active exchanges to identify impactful science-policy recommendations to policymakers for a more sustainable Europe.

The webinar on 12 November will consist of two sessions. The first session will focus on some of the priorities of the Hungarian Presidency, looking in particular at the new EU competition strategy and the upcoming Clean Industrial Deal. It will highlight how such new ambitions will complement, advance or collide with the Green Deal policies and the EU climate objectives. This discussion will include reflections on the EU's role in the global net-zero industrial race and the creation of Clean Trade and Investment Partnerships. Questions will address the new proposals expected to come out in the coming months, outlined in the Commission's political guidelines and in the hearings and mission letters to the Commissioners-designate.

The second session will shift attention to the global dimension of the expected Clean Industrial Deal and the ongoing international processes which can impact, such as expectations of outcomes from COP29 and conclusions from COP16, where participants will explore the latest developments, agreements, and challenges surrounding global climate negotiations. Together, these sessions will provide a comprehensive overview of both the EU environmental policy developments and the broader international climate agenda.
